

Big Enough Dreams

Big Enough Dreams, a book edited by Debbie Marshall (2006), was a project of the Edmonton Learning Community - a network of self-advocates, parents, service providers, government employees and educators interested in promoting positive images of people with developmental disabilities. They believe that all people have strengths, skills and gifts that contribute to the vitality of our communities. The book tells the stories of 29 people.

For more information about Big Enough Dreams and where to purchase it and other materials, visit: http://www.edmontonlearningcommunity.com/big_enough_dreams.html.

For more information about the Edmonton Learning Community, visit: <http://www.edmontonlearningcommunity.com/>.

