

The Are Word

The Are Word, a book by David Hingsburger suggests that there are ways that we can help young people with intellectual disabilities understand and deal with teasing and bullying. This book will help parents and staff support an individual with a disability who is being bullied.

For a description of this and other good books related to youth and adults who have a disability, or to make a purchase, visit: <http://diverse-city.com/products-page/books/the-are-word/>

For more resources for people with disabilities who are being bullied, as well as family and friends, visit <http://www.r-word.org>. This website is based around an anti-bullying campaign from Special Olympics, Best Buddies and others for and with people with intellectual disabilities.

