

Power of Rebecca's Life and Advocacy Work

Transcript

Susan Beayni: We realized as Rebecca's family very early on that Rebecca had a great power through the story of her life to influence others, not only the community in their responsibility to others to try and initiate relationship-building but also for other families and for individuals to really be focussed on that goal. We also have been very involved in advocacy work with the various levels of government and we feel that they too need to be very involved in providing the opportunities and the funding to help organizations who are involved in this kind of work.
